E. DISTANCE LEARNING

Distance learning is a formal educational process in which the majority of the instruction occurs when the learner and the instructor are not in the same place at the same time. In this process, information or distributed learning technology is the likely connector between the learner, the instructor, or the site of program origin.

Does your institution offer courses for credit through distance learning
(i.e., for the majority of instruction or entirely by distance learning)? No
Does not refer to courses in which distance learning technologies are used as a minor supplement (less than 50%) to in-class instruction.

of below ONLY those off-campus sites that meet ALL the following criteria for a branch campus.

A location of an institution that is geographically apart from and independent of the main campus of the institution. The location is independent if it: offers courses in educational programs leading to a degree, certificate, or other recognized educational credential; has its own faculty and administrative or supervisory organization; AND has its own budgetary and hiring authority.

Do not list former branches that are now separately accredited in the Middle States region, because separately accredited units complete their own Profiles. If those former branches are separately accredited in another region, report them under Related Institutions in Section A.

Provide the headcount of students registered for credit, as of Fall 2004.
